CLAIMS

Sub A

1. A method for the prediction and optimization of a communications system comprising the steps of:

inputting a plurality of channels, predicting a performance of each channel using a plurality of parameters to characterize the performance of the channel; and optimizing the parameters of each channel according to a design criteria.

fill #2